Dear Craig:

Thank you for helping make the 2007 Komen Philadelphia Race for the Cure a far greater success than we could have ever imagined. Your support helped take the Race from a "big event" to a truly amazing celebration of life and community.

The generosity of your company... the complete devotion of your team... empowered us with an undeniable presence in the Delaware Valley. From the dozens of bold banners commanding attention on the Parkway, to the transit boards zooming by every commuter and pedestrian, to the dozens of other projects you embraced and completely in record time, our achievements were as grand as they were because of you.

The epitome of your impact can be found in the banners, which lead the way of 7,000 breast cancer survivors during their time to shine. That banner is a tremendous source of pride and symbol of victory to these women and men. Your generosity, Craig, embodies the friendship every survivors seeks, and that is a friendship they can trust to see this crusade to the end. Moreover, your total commitment drives home the point of how much we can accomplish when all walks of life work together... of what it means to truly be for the cure.

The Komen Philadelphia Affiliate realizes progress in the movement comes from a combination of good fortune, good people and hard work. We are deeply grateful to you and the Quaker Chroma Team for providing all these attributes.

We can all be proud of reaching this next level, but we know that there are more ways to climb. Where we are now is a stepping stone, not a resting spot. We are so thankful for everyone who helped us get here, and we are committed to showing our appreciation by using the lessons and achievements of today to strive for, approach and attain even greater goals until there is no longer a need to race for a cure.

Sincerest thanks,

Elaine I. Grobman
